

Jenny Lahre

COMMUNITY VOLUNTEER

Jenny Lahre graduated from Bucknell University and moved to New York City to build a career in marketing and advertising. She served as a brand manager at TBWA\Chiat\Day spearheading new business and managing several Pernod Ricard products, then advanced to Senior Brand Manager at McGarryBowen, leading integrated brand strategy and campaigns for the Chase account. After the birth of her first child, she transitioned from her full-time corporate role to focus on raising her family.

Now a resident of Chappaqua, Jenny lives with her husband, Josh, and their three sons: Nico (11), Teddy (9), and Finn (7). Her oldest joined the BGNW Marlins at age six, and today all three boys swim competitively for the team, keeping the family active and engaged in the local community.

